Election fever rising

SOUTH BAY—A flurry of three candidates qualified Tuesday for the March 4 city election, providing competition for both seats being vacated and providing the possibility of a March 11 runoff for Mayor Billy Wells' seat.

Incumbent Ray Sullivan qualified for his Group One seat and Group Two saw two candidates qualify as Sammy Rogers qualified in the morning and Doris Sanford Davis qualified that afternoon.

Sullivan qualified to run for his fourth term, his second consecutively, saying morale of city employees is higher now than at any time in the past two years.

"For the benefit of the candidates," Sullivan said, "the city's water and sewer needs have been taken care of." He said he hoped the work now in progress will take care of the systems' needs for the next 15 years.

Sullivan also said he is now working on an anti-litter campaign to clean up the city, both city streets and property.

"I've enjoyed working with the fellows," he said. "I believe we're getting along better than other commissioners had in the past. We work well together. No one person has done it all but we've cooperated."

Mrs. Davis, a teacher at Gove Elementary School who lives at 465 E. 1st Ave., said she was running for the Group Two seat on the same platform she ran on in 1977, when she lost in a tight runoff race against Mayor Wells.

"My concerns are still not met," she said. "We need to get new industry. We need recreational facilities for the youths and the elderly in the city and we need a library. There are still no street markers and I think that's still important to the citizens of South Bay."

More profits in farms than oil--Exxon rep

BELLE GLADE—At least three Glades area corporations are more profitable than some of the big oil companies, Belle Glade Rotarians were told Tuesday.

Rod Thatcher, area marketing representative for Exxon Corporation, said the rate of return for Exxon's business in the United States, far from being as great as reported in the national press, is less than the rate of profits enjoyed by Wedgworth Farms, Stein Farms and Kirchman Oil.

Representatives of all three Glades corporations were in the audience that heard Thatcher say the 55 per cent profit margin reported for Exxon recently is largely because of European ventures, that the corporation's business in the United States realized less than 4.5 per cent profits.

Thatcher pressed home his theme that the big oil companies aren't to blame for either long lines at service stations or the price of gas rising from 35 cents a gallon to $1.20 at the pumps since 1973.

He said the energy crisis didn't begin with the Arab oil embargo in 1973. He said it started years before that when the production of crude oil in the United States stopped rising and began falling to the point the nation imports 48 per cent of the oil consumed today.

Thatcher said there is so much information floating around about the shortage and rising price of oil today, and the issue is so complex, it's hard for the layman to know what to believe and he said every time there's a price increase or notice of profits reported, "all the old myths crop up."

"The American public won't believe what the oil companies tell them," he said. "They won't believe what the President of the United States tells them or what foreign nations have come to accept but the public is ready to believe the wildest kind of story about oil companies dumping gas in the desert when they hear it second hand from a person they don't even know."

Deputies pursue murder case

Palm Beach County Sheriff's deputies returned from Alabama Wednesday in a continuing investigation of the murder of a South Bay woman who was found Sunday, floating in a drainage canal just west of 20 Mile Bend.

Detective Robert Boxold and Deputy Albert Harper were in Montgomery, Ala., where they spoke to Thomas Geter, 49, in a mental institution and searched Geter's car. Geter was the last person seen with Wilmer Burnam, 37, of 955 Palm Beach Rd. in South Bay after she had disappeared from her home the evening of Feb. 3.

Boxold said this morning he and Harper found "some evidence" in Geter's car that will have to be checked out by the FBI.

Boxold said he is also looking for anyone who might have seen Geter with Mrs. Burnam in Geter's car the Sunday she disappeared. The car is a beige, two door Chevrolet Impala with wire wheels on the front.

Mrs. Burnam was reported missing Tuesday, Feb. 5 by her son, two days after she had last been seen in South Bay by her daughter. An autopsy performed on Mrs. Burnam this week, after she had been found in a ditch on Seminole Sugar property, revealed bruises on the left side of her head.

Geter, a previous mental patient, checked into a mental hospital in Montgomery Tuesday after driving up from the Glades. Mrs. Burnam was born in the Glades and attended Lake Shore High School in Belle Glade. She is survived by five children.

Water problems eyed

PAHOKEE — Councilmen are focusing on the city's water system after learning that water has to be cut off citywide whenever a repair is made anywhere in the lines.

The problems surfaced when commissioners were reminded during Tuesday night's session that the city's water supply would be turned off at 10 p.m. Wednesday night while workmen installed a new valve on a hydrant at Cypress and Second which has been spewing water for months.

Commissioners expressed concern that Everglades Hospital would be without water for the length of time the repairs took and asked Utilities Director Bill Cross why cutoffs aren't limited to sections of lines instead of stopping water service throughout the city.

"We should be able to kill water every 400 feet," Cross said. "But we've got a lot of old valves that need to be dug up and replaced."

He explained that to date he hasn't been able to locate a layout diagramming the location of all the water pipelines.

He added that there were also a number of two-inch lines in parts of the city that should be replaced.

"Some of those two-inch lines would collapse if we ever had to attach a fire hose to them," he said. His remarks prompted a discussion among commissioners of a past incident when a fire call sounded moments before the city's water was to be interrupted for repairs. Had the call come in minutes later, commissioners agreed, there would have been no water available to the firemen.

Cross was directed to track down a survey of pipelines made in 1960, determine what engineering firm made the survey and attempt to locate a copy of it for use in a long-range water system renovation plan.

PAHOKEE POLICE are looking for the vehicle that knocked down the newly-installed guard rails at the dike. Completed Monday, the rails were pushed over sometime Tuesday night. Surveying the damage, believed to be the work of vandals, are City Commissioner Curtis Miners, left, and Donnie Martin, public works director.

Belle Glade to lease landfill?

BELLE GLADE—The city commission agreed in concept to lease the city sanitary landfill to the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority for use as the site of a proposed garbage transfer station.

No formal action was taken since the commission was only meeting in a workshop session but commissioners agreed after a short discussion to the concept of renting the landfill to the authority at the rate of $10 a year for the next 30 years.

Commissioner Tom Altman asked city attorney John Baker, however, to try to ensure the city has the right to use the landfill at some future date should that become desirable.

"Landfills are becoming more and more reclaimable," Altman said, adding the city might find use for the area in the future as a park. "As you are aware," Solid Waste Authority Director Tim Hunt wrote City Manager Robert Sanders in a letter requesting the lease, "the city landfill will be physically incapable of receiving additional wastes within the next several months, thus placing implementation of the transfer facility in a critical time frame."

Hunt went on to say construction and equipment acquisition for the transfer operation could be accomplished in four to five months, providing early action on the lease proposal is taken.

Hunt also said in his letter that the city would continue to use the landfill until the proposed Shuttleworth Transfer Station is ready to go into operation but that wasn't included in the proposed lease agreement and Baker said he wanted to make sure it was a part of the final agreement.

The authority had originally intended to put a combination landfill, incinerator and mulching operation on the site but that plan was scrapped when rising prices put the projected operating costs out of practical reach.

The Budget and Policy Advisory Committee for the Glades operation has also listened to a proposal by a private company to "cook" the garbage generated in the Glades area, and hasn't given up the idea completely yet but it couldn't be realized before the city landfill is used up and in any case the transfer station was considered to be necessary as a backup to the cooking operation.

In other business, the commission:

- Agreed to a proposed agreement between the city and county library systems to replace the agreement which existed until last year when the county commission first suspended the agreement, then later decided to reinstate an altered form of it.

- Discussed the merits of an elevated water storage tank on Duda Road, as proposed in a study done for the city by Briley, Wild and Associates concerning water system improvements, compared to a ground storage tank.

In a discussion last fall, the commission had agreed to go ahead with the elevated tank because figures drawn up by Briley, Wild indicated the annual costs would be similar.

Tuesday night, however, Public Works Director Kenneth Retterer showed the commissioners figures which indicate the elevated tank would cost the city $642,434 more than the ground tank, based on a

BACK TALK

Today being Valentine's Day, Backtalk's question was: "What are you going to give your Valentine?" Obviously, we had to keep the answers secret until the end of the day: And because this is Leap Year, it was a question for ladies only.

Jeannette Swift, City Hall-I don't have a plan yet. I'm kind of a late shopper. I usually write my own valentine and I've been working on it.

Rhonnie Cox, City Hall-I don't have a plan but I recently acquired a crockpot and I have a special meal planned.

Dottie Fogleman, City Hall-I thought I'd have all the children over for dinner. And, of course, a card.

Salary demand is an education

Of all the demands state legislators can expect when the Florida Senate and House of Representatives goes into session in April, one of the most jolting must be the demand by one of the major teachers unions that beginning teachers be paid a salary of $20,000, with an increase to $40,000 by their tenth year on the job.

"The teacher salary situation has come to a head," said Pat Tornillo, president of the Florida Education Association/United AFT, AFL/CIO (FEA). "We simply cannot live on our salaries. And we are not going to sit by and accept the crumbs of the budget pie. We are going to actively and aggressively lobby each legislator, school board member, public official and taxpayer in this state. We are going to be paid a decent wage."

Tornillo's union, as a matter of fact, has set salaries as its number one priority and FEA/United's legislative program reflects that position, along with the demand that not only must teachers be given a $20,000 starting salary during the 80s, cost of living increases must be reflected each year for each FEA/United member.

Notice, that wasn't teacher, that was FEA/United member.

Granted, there's no question that teachers have had it rough over the past decade. They started with an average salary of $7,563 in 1970 and the $13,775 average salary last year was eroded by inflation.

And though no figures have been made available to us, we'll grant for the sake of argument that teachers would have to be making $16,758 now just to keep up with where they were in 1970 and we'll grant that the cost for a moderate standard of living for a family of four is now $20,000.

But let's be realistic. Who among us hasn't been bitten by the inflation bug? If you're not making more than double what you were earning in 1967, it's a flat, natural fact you've lost ground too.

And it's increasingly notable that the only salaried people in the United States with anything like a guaranteed cost of living elevator in their pay are government employees, federal, state or local... and not too many locals.

And just who is it that guarantees that "moderate income salary" of $20,000? It may be easy to say it's the government but the word is spelled t-a-x-p-a-y-e-r and that means you.

But don't feel neglected; there's a plan for coming up with the jack too, even if it does come from FEA/United's competing union, FTP/NEA.

The plan calls for:

- A constitutional amendment allowing a personal income tax.
- A legislative review of all tax exemptions.
- Sunset of all sales tax exemptions with the exception of those for food and drugs.
- A one-cent sales tax increase.
- Incentives for economic development.
- Increase in the tax on alcohol and tobacco with the tax on alcohol being levied based on cost, rather than volume.
- Even before the last increase in state tax on tobacco and alcohol, more than half the price of a pack of cigarettes was tax. The price of a bottle of gin, advertised at the time for $3.99 plus 16 cents sales tax for a total of $4.15, was 69 cents. The other $3.46 was nothing but tax.)
- Legislative action to require 100 per cent valuation of property for ad valorem tax purposes.
- Discretionary two mills to be levied at the option of local school boards.

All of which may raise enough for teachers to be paid what they want... but how does that compare with what others get paid?

In a recent issue of Graduates, an article mentioned that business administration graduates with a bachelor's degree, the same required of beginning teachers, will earn between $931 to $1,146 a month, compared to the $1,615 a month being asked for by FEA/United, or the $2,000 a month salary if teachers ten-month working year is considered.

One alternate plan the teachers could consider to higher salaries would be to go on to law school once they get their bachelors degree. They could then look forward to an average pay of some where between $16,000 and $19,500, depending on where they settle.

But that would require an investment of another three years of school.

There's a commercial I've been hearing for the past year on radio that goes something like, "You say you've spent the last two weeks in Florida and you're ready to go home and you haven't seen Jai Alai? Why, you poor, benighted fool, don't you know Jai Alai is where it's at and if you vacation in Florida without having seen Basque walk the wall to catch a hurtling ball, you'll be barred from returning!"

Well, I can relate.

I could go a couple steps further and say I've only been to the keys once, to Miami twice and they had to pay me all three times, and it wasn't until a couple years ago that I first darkened the door of a dog track.

But I'll have to admit that if I could be assured of seeing a few of the sights related in a news release that found its way across my desk, I'd probably be more apt to spend more time at the local kennel clubs.

There's the one, for instance, that happened in a schooling race several years ago when a field of eight young pups broke from the box and one of them was quickly knocked to his feet.

While the rest of the field continued after the lure, the battered greyhound regained his feet, cleared his head and continued the race... headed in the wrong direction.

Reaching the far turn, Wrong Way Corrigan was confronted with a strange sight. There was the mechanical lure coming straight at him, traveling about 40 miles an hour, and the other seven pups in hot pursuit.

Wrong Way got the idea then, turned tail and crossed the finish line with the lure chasing him and the other dogs chasing the lure.

Sorta reminded me of a dog I had several years ago who was chasing some biddies that belonged to a neighbor of ours. The next thing I knew, he was headed back into our back yard faster than he left, with the mother hen flying low about two inches over the dog's back.

Secretary John Hartwell of Palm Beach Kennel Club told about veteran trainer Ernie Bartley schooling a "spook", a dog that was afraid of people. The dog jumped the railing into the infield, ran behind the judge's stand and jumped into the lake.

But the greyhound couldn't swim. Fromm had to jump into the lake and bring the dog to shore.

The drenched Fromm, who would sometimes stutter in moments of excitement, could be heard exclaiming as he carried the dog from the track, "The damn dog can't swim and he ca-can't run either."

Kennel Operator Henry Bartley told about one greyhound that used to run "back in the old days" in Texas.

"The dog's name was Town Bull and he could really run," Bartley recalled. "Only trouble was that everytime you put him in the box, he'd turn around. It was always a half turn."

"When the box would open, there would be Town Bull's tail stickin' out. He did it every time," Bartley said, and that was the secret to the cure.

"They figured out if they loaded him in backwards, he'd make the half turn and facing straight. Sure enough, he would always come out straight when they put him in backwards."

And if you're a gambler, you may or may not like these odds for a long shot. Last Tuesday, (Feb. 5), the eight greyhounds running in the first race finished in exact reverse order, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1. The odds of this happening were calculated at 40,320 to 1.

Then there was the one about Glenn Campbell's dog, Fred Fish, who was once knocked off the track into the rail where he received a severe electrical shock from the line which powers the mechanical lure.

Some quick thinking from the lure operator and the veterinarian on hand saved the dog's life and he returned to run at the Palm Beach Kennel Club. But thereafter, his nickname was Fried Fish.

Now if they had all that happening in every night at the track, there'd probably be more people out to watch the show than people betting.

Cable TV gets Council attention

PAHOKEE—Cable television has some dissatisfied viewers — city commissioners among them.

The issue came before commissioners Tuesday night when Robert Mackey appeared before council to complain about the "sorry service" cable viewers are getting and to ask whether the city couldn't cancel the franchise.

Commissioners were advised by City Attorney Michael Stauder that the city could terminate the franchise if it could provide specific complaints.

"Bad reception isn't necessarily a violation," he said. "You'd need a list of what they're doing wrong."

Commissioner W. E. McKinstry pointed out that the original agreement included a provision that a "technician would be here all the time" but that telephone calls are answered by a recorded announcement.

Mackey commented that the monthly rates had risen a number of times but, in view of rising prices everywhere, he could accept that if "the service wasn't the worst I've ever seen."

Commissioners noted that they had taken off the rate control — a provision that would require the cable television owners to submit rate increases to the commissioners for approval.

By unanimous decision they call for any future increases to require council approval.

Commission Chairman Robert Welty directed Stauder to send the cable television firm, Jones Inter-cable, "a good strong letter" advising that they should have a representative at the next council meeting and notifying them that council "is seeking means to take action against them."

Other business to come before commissioners included:

- A request from Mrs. Gene Cross for endorsement of a Glades area mental health catchment separate from West Palm Beach.

Among the advantages to a separate mental health unit she cited were the distance involved in transporting clients, the population increase in the western end of the county and the desire for self-governance.

Asked by Commissioner McKinstry whether the burden of financing the separate catchment area could fall on the Glades area in the future, Mrs. Cross replied that "Palm Beach has gotten funds on the basis of our poverty. We will still have our poverty so we'll get some of this back."

On McKinstry's motion, the council voted to adopt a supporting resolution.

- In response to a request by Harriet Seldes, chairman of the Prince Theatre Foundation for the city to underwrite, either outright or as a loan, costs of liability insurance on the newly-renovated auditorium, council directed City Clerk Betty McCoy to investigate the cost involved to the city through extending its coverage as compared with a separate policy covering the Foundations liability.

- Authorized City Attorney Stauder to contact Weyant Engineering to appear before the council at its next meeting regarding plans for street, sidewalk and drainage improvements contracted to be drawn up about two years ago but which have not been received.

Chairman Welty said, "We've got a bunch of cancelled checks we've paid him. Let's go after that money and get it back."

- Authorized Building Inspector Felix Slonaker to work with Commissioner Noma Norman in laying out a bicycle racing track in the back corner of the 14-acre 5th Street park.

- Passed a motion that would prohibit the city from leasing the marina in the future, and agreed to schedule a workshop to discuss plans for city operation.

A lease with Charles Jernigan was terminated last month by mutual agreement with Jernigan paying the city delinquent rent and agreeing to operate the facility for the city until May when the lease term would have ended.

MORE HELP for the Glades Area Association for Retarded Citizens' building fund, an effort to raise $40,000 to buy St. Peters Church and School property on West Canal Street North in Belle Glade, was provided Tuesday by the Rotary Club of Belle Glade. ifference in construction costs of $1.12 million for the elevated tank and $800,000 for the ground tank.

"Frankly," Retterer said, "that scares me."

But, said Engineer Jim Seneff, however, "that when the figures for overall costs are broken down to an annual basis, the cost will be close."

Retterer said an alternative plan that might be better than putting the tank on Duda Road would be to put a ground storage tank at the water plant, a move that might save the city even more money than a ground storage tank on Duda Road. Seneff was granted a request to study the problem and get back with a recommendation.

Lions to help charities

BELLE GLADE—A pair of charities will benefit, along with the winner of a $1,250 Sony video tape recorder which will be given away during the March 5 meeting of the Belle Glade Lions Club.

Project chairman Rodney Bickel said tickets are on sale. He said 50 per cent of the proceeds will go to the Lions Camp for the Visually Handicapped near Lake Wales and the other half will go to the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

Bickel said tickets for the recorder may be purchased from any Lion. He said the recorder is an SL-5400 Beta Matic with a 4 1/2 hour recording time.

- Continued a discussion on the advisability of drawing up an ordinance governing flea markets.
- Decided to change another budget item by buying two five-yard dump trucks instead of one 15-yard dump truck.
- Completed land application for $60,000 from the county to be used for the development of Airport Park.

Greg Bain named MVP at Glades Central

BELLE GLADE — "Education is the future for you," Charlie Lyle, University of Florida Defensive back coach told athletics at Glades Central Community High School fall sports banquet last Thursday evening.

Speaking before a packed house, Lyle said, "You never stop learning, take it from me, I thought with a college education I could sit back and reap the benefits. But the more I learn, the more I know I don't know."

"Money is not the criteria for success either," said Lyle.

"Just look at Coach Ben McCoy he's successful, take coach Velma Edwards, she grew up in this community, went away to college, got her degree and returned home to teach and coach, she's successful," he added.

Lyle went on to tell the athletes that to be successful, they must be the captain of their ship and have a plan.

"Whether white, black, green or purple, the future is out there ahead of you, only you can make it what you want it to be, take advantage of your opportunity," Lyle said.

Before Lyle concluded his message and the awards were presented, he told the athletes to stand up and be men and women, whether black or white, having babies and not being responsible did not make them men or women.

In the Cross Country Awards, the top honors went to Laverne Moreland, voted Most Valuable Player, and Emanuel Thorton voted Most Improved.

In Volleyball, Shelia Ashley received the MVP award and Cynthia Harrell received the Most Improved Award.

Before Coach McCoy presented his coaching staff he presented the Class 3-A state runners-up with their hardware. McCoy told the team, he would like to accept another coaching position so that he could coach his son, whose a senior in college, but promised the team he'd be back next year.

The team's leading rusher, Greg Bains was named Most Valuable Player and Jessie Hester MVP in the playoffs.

Other awards went to Michael Stinson, Headhunter, a new award this year.

Charles Miller was named Defensive Lineman; Arthur Thomas, Most Improved Defensive Lineman; Afonso Butts, Offensive Lineman; Thomas Lockett, Most Improved Offensive Lineman and highest scholastic average; Leonard Camel, Offensive Back; Vincent Jones, Most Improved Offensive Back; Steve Sneed, Defensive Back; Nathaniel Stinson, Most Improved Defensive Back; David James, Most Tackles; and Wilford Morgan, Most Passes Caught.

The Athletic Department also honored Junior Meadows who worked the chains at the former Belle Glade High School and GCOH football games for 25 years.

Dr. Effie Grear presented Mr. and Mrs. Bill Motes a surprise award for the support the Motes give to all of GCOH activities.

The football team also presented awards to the coaching staff.

Cross is heart leader.

The Palm Beach County Chapter of the American Heart Association announced the appointment of Bryan F. Cross to head the 1980 Commerce and Industry fund-raising drive in Pahokee.

Cross is Branch Manager of the Everglades Federal Savings and Loan Association, and is a member of the Board of Directors of the local chapter of the American Heart Association.

The local chapter of the Heart Association budgets 40% of all funds raised to research of cardiovascular disease. According to Cross, "In addition to sponsoring the research, our chapter is working daily to alert people in our community of potential risk factors, and signals of heart disease. The new Heart Fair, an exercise trail being built in Airport Park in Belle Glade, is an example of efforts being made to prevent the development of heart disease.

"We have accomplished so much, but so much more needs to be done."

And Kenneth Shuler,

Palm Beach County Agricultural Agent

It has been suggested that sugar cane may be a good source of energy. The sugar in cane juice can be fermented into alcohol. Gasohol can be made by adding alcohol to unleaded gasoline in a ratio of one part alcohol to nine parts gasoline. The bagasse from the stalks can be used as fuel in a power plant. Almost all the energy used in a sugar mill comes from burning bagasse in the power plant boiler.

Next, some questions arise like how much energy does the U.S. need in one year? And if we grow sugar cane for energy, can we grow enough to help solve the energy crisis in the U.S.?

According to the Journal Science (January 1979), in 1977 the U.S. consumed a little more than 77 quads of energy. A quad of energy is 10¹⁵ BTUs, which is equivalent to 170 million barrels of oil, 40 million tons of bituminous coal or 75 million tons of dry biomass. Biomass refers to plant material used as a source of energy.

If we remember that here in the Glades, the acreage for sugar cane is 333,400 acres for 1979, we can calculate how much dry biomass we could produce. Let's assume that we harvest about 35 tons of fresh cane per acre and that fresh cane is 27 percent dry matter. When we multiply these numbers, we obtain about 3.1 million tons of dry biomass. It takes 75 million tons of dry biomass to produce one quad of energy and we used about 77 quads in 1977. This 3.1 million tons is only .05 percent of the total energy needs of 1977.

We could also try including the leaves and tops of the sugar cane. According to Dr. G.J. Gascho, in a recent unpublished paper entitled, "The Energy Potential of Sugar Cane and Sweet Sorghum", the leaves and tops will increase the dry biomass by 30 percent. So now our 3.1 million tons increases to 4.0 million tons but we're still a long way from 75 million tons for one quad.

But what about making alcohol? According to Dr. Gascho's paper, one acre of highly productive sugar cane land could yield just over 1,600 gallons of ethyl alcohol in one year. To obtain just one quad of energy, about 607,000 acres of sugar cane would be needed. So here again, we see that making alcohol won't help our national energy needs very much.

In spite of all this, energy from biomass can be significant on a smaller scale. It can help people on a statewide or local basis. In the Midwest, many farmers are fermenting their corn into alcohol and making gasohol. And locally, the United States Sugar Corporation is presently building a power plant just to burn excess bagasse. The electricity produced will be sold to F&L.

There is no panacea for the energy crisis. All of us will have to look for different solutions. So if you still have your uncle's still for making home brew, you can bring it out of hiding now.

Belle Glade

Ralph Kidder introduces his first book

HERALD-OBSERVER 5A
Thursday, Feb. 14, 1980

BELLE GLADE—More than 100 friends and relatives gathered

Sunday to get a look at Cattle to Cane, the work of Belle Glade's newest author and one of the city's most senior residents, Ralph Kidder.

Station as farm and labor foreman. He retired in 1968 as professor of animal husbandry, emeritus.

that was a symptom unlisted in veterinary medicine. Another was that the cattle became amblyop.

University. "They said they'd seen the same symptoms," Kidder said, "but they didn't say anything about it because they didn't know what it was."

Exxon

Thatcher said the problem is that Americans are hearing things they don't want to believe, that they don't like the prospect of paying higher prices at the pumps where they have to wait in line and they don't like the environmental trade-offs being requested by the oil companies.

He said there are three fundamental misconceptions; that there is no shortage, that it's just a ploy by the oil companies to jack up prices; that oil companies are making obscene profits and that when prices rise to a level predetermined by the oil companies, there will be plenty of gasoline available.

He said the shortage is real, that Iran is producing 3 million barrels a day compared to 5 million before the revolution a year ago. He said another reason for regional shortages is that when it was first announced in 1978, northerners believed it and stayed home, where long lines developed while there were relatively fewer lines in South Florida.

He said the problem was that people who would normally drive to South Florida for their vacations stayed home last winter and that year's gas allocations are based on last year's. This year, those same people did come south and the rest is history. On oil company profits, Thatcher said Exxon was ranked in the top three corporations in the nation for total assets last year but was 270th in its profits on sales and 278th in its return to investors.

He said that was a worse record than Wedgworth's, F&N and Kitchen Oil. Thatcher said the reason people believe that when the price of gasoline rises high enough, the supply won't be a problem is because it happened in 1973. He said that when the Arab oil embargo of '73 was lifted, it unilaterally, OPEC also unilaterally raised the prices.

He said there are some solutions though, including allowing the price of domestic oil to rise to world prices, giving all energy developers greater access to public lands for exploration for oil, balancing energy and environmental programs and the development of synthetic fuels.

He wound up by saying he doesn't expect the United States to become self sufficient in energy in the near future but Exxon does hope the nation can be turned around from having to rely quite so heavily on foreign producers.

Cattle to Cane is the story of Kidder's experiences from the time he came to the Everglades Experiment Station here in 1930 until his retirement in 1968, and details of some of the more interesting problems he was exposed to while working with the station's cattle herd.

The coming party was held at the home of Kidder's son, Belle Glade veterinarian Clarence Kidder. Guests included friends from the Glades area, family from as far away as Chicago, New Orleans and Atlanta and associates from as far away as Gainesville.

Among others present were members of the Glades Historical Society, to whom Kidder has donated his book, along with the responsibility for book sales. Society Book Chairman Martha Allison said some 60 books were sold Sunday and she is just laying plans for future sales.

Kidder spent a good part of Sunday afternoon autographing books brought from Chicago by his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wall, who supervised the printing of the books at a Chicago printing house.

He said the Walls had brought only a portion of the books printed and the rest were being shipped. Kidder brought his family to Belle Glade in 1930 to accept a job at the Everglades Experiment Station as farm and labor foreman. He retired in 1968 as professor of animal husbandry, emeritus. The book describes some of his experiences and experiments in the 48 years between and lists 32 bulletins Kidder wrote or co-authored. Although he also wrote chapters in three books, From Cattle to Cane is the first book Kidder has authored in its entirety.

One of those present at the party was Dr. Marvin Koger of the University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS), who wrote in a personal word in the book that Kidder, "produced probably the most unique and extensive set of beef cattle production records in the United States."

Those records have been computerized at Gainesville by Dr. Koger and have been the basis for six master's theses and one dissertation by another graduate student for his doctorate.

Those papers, however, make up only a partial history of Kidder's work in finding solutions to such problems as anthrax, tuberculosis reactors, brucellosis, scissor mouth, dwarfism, nitrate toxicity, screw worms and a couple of esoteric problems called X-disease and photosensitization.

Kidder said cattlemen in the Everglades started noticing the symptoms of photosensitization in 1947-48, one of which was when the cattle started scratching their polls with their hind legs. Kidder said

Glades Day edges out Crusaders, 56-51

BELLE GLADE—Glades Day School's varsity and junior varsity basketball teams edged out Christian Day's teams Tuesday in 56-51 and 44-42 wins over the cross-town rivals after the varsity dropped a 70-50 decision last Friday to King's Academy and the junior varsity squeaked out a 32-31 victory.

"We out rebounded them," Glades Day varsity coach Dick Schmidt said of the Crusaders in the Tuesday night game. "It wasn't much of a difference but it was enough."

The-Gators-sank 21-field goals out of 54-attempts compared to the Crusaders' 22 of 52. From the free throw line, the Gators made 14 baskets of 26 attempts while the Crusaders picked up seven for 13.

Christian Day's William Cruz was the game's leading scorer with 28 points but it wasn't enough to stave off the Gators, who had three players in double figures. Dan Ross led the Gators with 18 points and 18 rebounds. He was followed by Tom Swager with 13 points, Richard Schiele with ten points and nine rebounds, Benton Tyson with eight and 13, Jason Shelton with five points and five assists and Billy Sanchez with two points.

For the Crusaders, Cruz was assisted by Bill Taylor with nine points, Jesus Armas with eight, Freddy Alvarez with four and Kent

Davis with two. In Friday's loss to King's Academy, Schmidt said the Gators were hurt when they were only able to complete 36 per cent of their field goal attempts while King's made 51 per cent of theirs.

"We shot 42 per cent from the free throw line," he said, "and they were 80 per cent and that made up the difference."

"They (King's Academy) were a two-man show," Schmidt said.

"Steve Husted made 29 points, 19 in the fourth quarter, and Bill Hamilton made 21 points. Nobody else on their team made more than four points."

For the Gators, Swager led the scoring with 19 points and five rebounds, followed by Benton Tyson with 11 points and 13 rebounds, Jason Shelton with nine points and nine assists, Ross with six points and 21 rebounds and Schiele with five and eight.

The week's split left the Gators with a 14-5 record for the season with three games left before going into the district tournament at the Christian Day School gym Feb. 28-29 and Mar. 1.

The Gators' last home game is at 7 p.m. Friday night, when they meet Summit Christian of West Palm Beach. They'll be playing at Palm Vista in Fort Pierce at 6 p.m. Saturday and wind up the season Feb. 22 in a game against Boca Raton Christian.

Palm Beach County's Sexual Assault 24-hour Assistance Program

By AILSA DEWING

An 11-month-old girl hospitalized with VD. A 91-year-old woman raped. A 15-year-old girl heeding her mother's advice from the age of five to "mind your father" with the mother unaware of what that blind obedience to daddy involved.

These were some of the Palm Beach County cases related by Harriette Rowe, coordinator for the county's Sexual Assault Assistance Project, speaking at a noon-hour workshop Wednesday at the Glades office building.

"Sexual assault cases have increased about 300 per cent in the county over the past two years," Miss Rowe told a gathering of social workers and agency representatives.

Yet the so-called "rape center" averages only two calls a month from Belle Glade, she said. "We know there are many more cases than that and when we can demonstrate the need, we can put a representative here," she said.

Her message was twofold: to alert Glades residents to some rape-threatening situations and possible preventive measures and make them aware of the services offered by the Sexual Assault Assistance Program.

The need for information about the program was underscored when she inquired what the Glades area rape crisis telephone number is and no one in the audience could answer.

Assistance is available 24 hours a day, Miss Rowe told her listeners. "We answer calls for help at 9 a.m., 2 p.m., 2 a.m., 4 a.m." Sexual assault is not just a night time happening but around-the-clock, she emphasized.

Victims do not need to report to the police before calling the assault assistance project. "We will counsel them and we will stay with them through whatever is involved: the hospital examination, insuring their safety, accompanying them to court and enlisting the help of any other agencies needed."

Assault victims are often also robbed, she pointed out, and may need food stamps and other aid as well.

The term "sexual assault" became the new term for "rape" in 1974, according to Miss Rowe, when the state legislature defined three areas of criminal offense: sexual battery, lewd and lascivious behavior, and incest, thus opening up other areas of sex crimes that could be prosecuted.

Some Myths About Rape

In her talk, she also dispelled some myths regarding sexual assault.

"It is not a crime of passion. It is a crime of violence."

These findings are based on evidence that most offenders do have a consenting sexual partner and that humiliation and degradation of a victim play a part in assault.

"It is not true that short skirts and no bras provoke incidents," she asserted.

"Nor is it true that if the victim goes limp this can be later construed as giving consent."

"It is not true that if the victim doesn't suffer any cuts or bruises, it is not a rape case," she said.

Prevention

Miss Rowe outlined several preventive measures, stressing that all were based on experiences reported to the center.

"Whatever you choose to do is an individual decision," she said. "All methods won't work for all people."

Repeating her admonition that rape can happen anytime, anywhere, "at home in daylight as well as at night in dark bushes," she cited the case of a woman who took out some trash and when she re-entered the house, her attacker was waiting inside. He had slipped in while she was in the yard.

"Keep your doors locked day and night," she cautioned. "Don't let anyone in that you don't know."

"Never accept a business card as identification."

"Don't be fooled by a uniform. If it's a service repairman, call the company first or ask for positive identification."

Women home alone at night should keep a light burning in another room, such as the bathroom, she advocated.

If someone comes to the door, call out, "I'll get it, George" or "Down, Brutus," to give the impression there is someone else in the house or that you have a dog.

"Never trust a dog to defend you," she warned, "but do trust it to warn you."

On the Road

"If you are traveling alone at night and you have car trouble, roll up the windows and lock yourself in the car."

"If someone stops to help you, crack the window and ask them to call the police for you."

"Nine out of ten people will stop to help you. But be prepared. Healthy paranoia is a fine thing."

Women who see another motorist in need of help should never stop but continue on till they reach a telephone and then phone for help, she advised.

Obscene Phone Calls

The best thing to do is hang up, Miss Rowe said. Then she related some alternatives told to her, such as blowing a police whistle into the phone or jiggling the hook and saying, "This is the operator. I'm tracing the call."

"One elderly lady pretended to be hard of hearing and kept asking the caller to speak up, making him speak louder and louder until he finally hung up exasperated."

Confrontation

"Use weapons, such as guns or knives, only as a last resort. Once the offender has the weapon and holds it to your throat, you have no defense."

"The martial arts like karate are terrific. But it takes a long time to become good at it."

Some unusual defenses were related by Miss Rowe who told of a woman who, when threatened, dropped to the ground and began eating grass.

"You're crazy," shouted the attacker and ran off.

A young girl stuck her finger down her throat and vomited on her assailant, driving him off.

But when a less fortunate victim protested, "I have VD," her attacker replied, "That's okay. So do I."

Kicking and screaming are not effective defenses according to Miss Rowe because they add to the assailant's anger "and he'll do anything to shut you up."

Miss Rowe compared this reaction to someone annoyed by a ringing alarm clock. "You will hit it, bang on it, throw it. Anything to make it be quiet."

Incest

"Children are at last beginning to realize there is someone to help them," Miss Rowe said, adding, however, that the child is still the one ostracized by being removed from the home and family when it ought to be the offending adult who is removed, in her opinion.

"You can usually trust what a child 8 to 10 tells you," she told the social workers.

Some children are victimized for years by a father, a stepfather or an uncle and don't know this is not a normal relationship."

On March 27 at 7:30 p.m., Miss Rowe will conduct a seminar, open to the public, at the Palm Beach Junior College Glades campus.

Men or women in need of help can reach the Sexual Assault Assistance Project by calling 837-2073 collect or by calling the Palm Beach County Crisis Intervention number 1-588-1121.

I read a story the other day that was amazing to me, although upon discussing it with some folks later on, I discovered it wasn't that unusual.

Seems a carpenter in New York called police twice to complain that although he had on no radio, he was somehow hearing a radio station playing hard rock music in his head.

The police dispatcher advised the man to take an aspirin (hard rock would give me a headache, too) and lie down.

Apparently, he followed the advice but as soon as he lay down, the rock music started up again so he called the station back in the middle of the night.

A police officer obliged by going to the gentleman's home. Putting his ear next to the man's head, the policeman heard the music too, playing through the man's skull.

Johnny-on-the-spot then advised the man to remove his new false teeth.

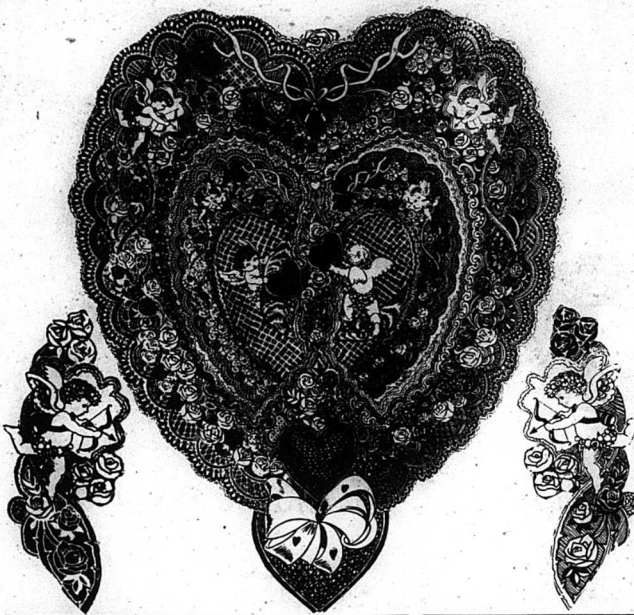

Apparently that did the trick. The dentures were evidently picking up the radio transmission.

Music anyone?

Today is Valentine's Day and I have no lofty illusions of receiving roses and being taken out for a romantic candlelight dinner. After all, when you've been married as long as I have you can't expect courtship to last forever.

Every marriage eventually settles into that ho-hum rut that makes each of us able to predict the other's every action and thought.

Are you listening, Bob?

Taking it From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

At a meeting last week I was talking with Reuel Howell, author of a number of religious personal development books. When I asked this observer of the American scene for more than 75 years what was the most significant thing that had affected our society, he said, "Whew! That's really a question!"

While Dr. Howell was thinking your writer mentioned that mobility has been a factor. Dr. Howell said, "Technology has been one of the most important factors in this century. It is readily agreed to by historians that there has been more technological advance in the last fifty years than in the whole history of civilization."

People in the 20th Century have seen the development of radio, TV, the airplane, instant world-wide communication, organ transplants, open heart surgery, high-rise living and so on. Agriculture has developed to the point we can produce more and more by fewer and fewer. Our country has put men on the moon, put manmade satellites into orbit and sent space capsules throughout our solar system. Many diseases have been conquered.

At the same time that people are living longer certain chemicals and drugs are threatening our lives. Pollution and exhaust from cars and smoke from cigarettes are apparently causing cancer and heart trouble.

The population, while increasing, is moving about the country and even deserting certain areas. Crime is also increasing in almost every metropolitan community.

What does this say to the churches and religious leaders? It is saying it's going to be harder to minister to a nation on the move, a nation which is growing older and one which is caught up in an increasing rate of inflation.

Certain communities are going to be populated by elderly people, and these communities will have to have hospital and transportation facilities for the elderly.

The churches will have to provide more programs for the older people. More pastoral care will be needed as more of them will be in and out of the hospitals. The buildings will have to be built to be easy of access for people in wheel chairs and those using walkers.

As the younger people leave the city on the week-ends for recreation the programs for this age will have to be geared to the week nights rather than Sundays.

Since the industrial revolution in the 19th century communities have been changing. The metropolitan areas are built, develop and grow old. Today the challenge is to minister to the population wherever they are or whenever they have time available.

The main thing is for the church to rise to the need and meet it. The people need the unchanging Christ in a changing society.

When it gets too much

A President of the United States in the middle of a war that nobody liked turned to prayer. Abraham Lincoln explained simply that he had been driven to his knees many times by the knowledge that his own strength, and that of all around him, was insufficient.

Sometimes we have to pray! It gets too much

And don't feel awkward if you're not used to it. Folks before you have found that life gets too much. They have been driven to their knees — and turned to God — believing there was something better ahead.

Your worst day could become your best! Why not check it out in church? What else Lincoln was driven to may be what your soul needs, hungers for.

When it gets too much — there's a better way ahead.

Inflation - Fighting IDEAS NEWS OF PROGRESS

More Miles From The Gallon
If you want to slow down your fuel costs, step up your personal conservative program. These tips, suggested by the Colonial Penn Insurance Company, can help you get more miles from each gallon of gas.

Regular maintenance may increase mileage by up to 14 percent—that might mean 40 to 50 extra miles per tank!

Sudden movements of the gas pedal increase gasoline consumption. Anticipate situations that might require you to reduce speed so you can slow down gently. Maintaining speeds just under the speed limit helps stretch your time between fill-ups, and you'll hardly notice the increase in travel time.

Regular car maintenance enhances gas mileage. Keep your engine tuned; replace worn-out plugs regularly. Correct ignition tuning is essential—rapid idling wastes gas.

Clean or replace your oil and air filters at recommended intervals to keep the engine operating at peak efficiency. Check your tire—over inflation can cost you a lot of miles from each tankful of gas.

One of the first large shopping guides of record was the Cleveland (Ohio) Shopping News, begun in 1921. It was so successful that one of its owners sold his other business and went to Pittsburgh to start a shopper there.
